the problem with expertise and the dark side of the equation knowledge power experts are not infallible treating them as such has done us all a grave disservice and as the weaponization of expertise makes painfully clear given rise to the very populism that all knowing experts and their elite coterie decry jacob hale russell and dennis patterson use the devastating example of the covid 19 pandemic to illustrate their case revealing how the hubris of all too human experts undermined perhaps irreparably public faith in elite policymaking paradoxically by turning science into dogmatism the overweening elite response has also proved deeply corrosive to expertise itself in effect doing exactly what elite policymakers accuse their critics of doing a much needed corrective to a dangerous blind faith in expertise the weaponization of expertise identifies a cluster of pathologies that have enveloped many institutions meant to help referee expert knowledge in particular a disavowal of the doubt uncertainty and counterarguments that are crucial to the accumulation of knowledge at a time when trust in expertise and faith in institutions are most needed and most lacking this work issues a stark reminder that a crisis of misinformation may well begin at the top

the popularity of cable news satire documentaries and political blogs suggest that people are often absorbing and dissecting direct political messages from informational media but entertainment media also discusses the important political issues of our time though not as overtly nonetheless consumers still learn debate and form opinions on important political issues through their relationship with entertainment media while many scholarly books examine these political messages found in popular culture very few examine how actual audiences read these messages parasocial politics explores how consumers form complex relationships with media texts and characters and how these readings exist in the nexus between real and fictional worlds this collection of empirical studies uses various methodologies including surveys experiments focus groups and mixed methods to analyze how actual consumers interpret the texts and the overt and covert political messages encoded in popular culture
